Furthermore, Frost uses detailed images to paint a detailed image of the surrounding environment. Furthermore, they capture the attention of the reader by focusing on A more deep and more powerful message: life choices. Although this slight difference in form is not very drastic, but helps to support the life choices of Frost. Written in the 1920s, "Road Not socket" and "Stopping by Woods in one Snowy evening "focused on the images of our natural environment. This metaphorically represents how in life you are not able to see how your decisions will have an impact on your future. Frost not only uses visual images but also auditory images. Some of the explanations may be too vague or confusing. Ideas are organized. Through the first verse, the pilot stumbles over the beautiful scenery of the woods during his journey. Smell that smelled the ocean, mixed with the smell of fried pasta and barbecue from restaurants near the seafont. Àe ðRoad not taken ðe ðUnder-eping by Woods on a snowy evening ð Circle a universal theme for making a meaningful decision in life and moving forward. In "Stittingop by Woods on a Snowy Evening," the frost uses a very common but powerful rhyming pattern. The fork on the road A~ a metaphor for the decisions we have to make for our journey of life. The explanation may be too short or needs to be worked out. In the second verse, the pilot's horse is perplexed by the sudden interruption of their journey. Creates an image for an example that represents every sense. Likewise, this rhyme pattern deviates slightly from a common measure, which consists of the typical rhyme pattern. The last overall emotional impression mainly highlights the importance of key sensory moments that the student chose to describe. This pattern is repeated for the next three rooms and then moves to a rhyming pattern of "ddd" in the fourth verse. Contains errors in grammar, usage, and mechanics that interfere with communication.
